Aleph, an emerging leading player in the digital printing industry, has signed a binding agreement with Wise SGR, a leading Italian management company of private equity funds with significant experience in the digital printing industry. Under the agreement, Wise SGR - on behalf of Wisequity IV closed-ended fund - will purchase a majority stake of Aleph.

"It is not a coincidence that the leading companies within this industry are Italian and Aleph is emerging as one of the most reliable solution providers. Innovation capabilities, service attitude and a great deal of commitment convinced us that Aleph team is the right one to invest on," Valentina Franceschini, partner at Wise, said.

Alessandro Manes, founder and CEO of Aleph, said: "Aleph has chosen Wise as a partner because they have a significant knowledge of our industry and a successful track record in supporting small and medium companies like us in growing business through operations improvement, internationalisation and M&A."

Wise SGR is a leading Italian management company of private equity funds and has a significant experience in the digital printing industry, following the investment in JK Group, a leading producer of inks for digital printing, then divested in 2015.

Aleph is emerging as a leading player in the digital printing industry providing not only large format textile digital inkjet printers for textile and other applications but also drying systems, proprietary software and consumables. Over the last 18 years, Aleph has installed over 400 digital plotters and provided customers with related consumables in Italy and abroad. In 2015 the company successfully launched the new series of LaForte large format printing machines and since then is contributing to the further digitalisation of the textile market.

Beside developing and producing state of the art products for all printing processes, Aleph has invested a lot in offering a prompt and reliable post-sales technical support and this is recognised by its customers as one of the key assets of the company. Aleph has successfully combined the software competencies of its team with the knowledge of the textile industry being based in the unique textile district of Como.

Aleph founders will continue to manage the company focusing on the development of new products and solutions and the improvement of the international presence. (SV)
